Total number of prisoners 7482

Though I have visited all the county gaols in England, and almost all the other prisons, yet as there are some few of the corporation prisons which I did not see, I have added seventy more prisoners to the number; so that, probably, we have nearly the average number of persons confined at one time in all the prisons of this kingdom.

I subjoin the numbers confined in the London prisons and in the hulks, at the time they were visited in 1788, which are as follows:
